Have you ever wandered past a vacant field and thought to yourself: 'I wonder how much this would cost to farm?' or 'would planning permission ever be granted here' or simply 'how much is this plot actually worth?' - then you might be the perfect candidate for a Harper Adams Land and Property Management (LPM) course!

Careers in surveying and land agency are exciting, challenging and unexpectedly creative. With land management laws often at the heart of government policy, you can expect to be constantly learning, discovering and adapting. An ideal LPM undergraduate is passionate about property management, great at problem-solving and digging (sometimes literally) into the detail; they'll also be keen listeners, willing negotiators and excellent communicators.

Sound like you? Then come along to one of our free LPM experience days to get a flavour of valuation, construction, property marketing, renewable energy and so much more.

*LPM Experiences are for attendees aged 14 to 19
